A Summer Romance, or, the Sore-eyed
Corporal Who Wouldn't Tell.

This is a modern romance. I know it by the ear marks and then the author says it is. It is a summer romance, because one can only read it in hot weather when it is too hot and when the flies are so bad that one cannot stand it to read anything while. The style is copied from the Fireside Companion or the Home Visitor, written by a person who never had a home and wouldn't stay there if he did.

It borders on realism and is thrilling as the story of "How the Fine Lady Ran Away With the Coachman" or "The Hired Hand's Revenge." It is thrilling in the extreme at the rate of about a thrill a minute.

It is a story of "A Maiden's Devotion" or "True Love in Dog Days." The young man was taken a prisoner by the Boers and his sweetheart found him. The news was kept from her as long as possible, but at last, at last, somebody "broke the news to mother" and then the jig was up.

She didn't eat a bite for three days and then she made up her mind that she would rescue her lover or break a pig. The story doesn't exactly run that way, but that is the purport. She cried out in the night, "I will follow him to the end of the world and make him some liver for breakfast," for she had heard that the Boers treated their prisoners badly.

The girl went to the nearest butcher shop and bought a quart of liver and took the train, with orders to put her "off at Buffalo." Her lover's name was Reginald. This is a lie, but in a summer romance it is always better to give the hero some romantic name. The girl's name was "Alice," but that is too common, for a girl who longs for adventure and excitement must not have a name that is too common.

From Buffalo she took an automobile and struck out for South Africa. She reached the Boer lines without incident. She was halted by a sentinel who told her he would rather die than to admit anyone in the lines without the countersign. She told him she had the countersign, and when asked to give it, she said "Keno" and being able to make good, she was admitted.

She next encountered the captain, the story says, and she said to him, "Hello, Cap, how's your liver?" He said, "All right, how is your liver?" She told him she was better and she would like to find her lover Reginald. He was informed that he was a prisoner of war. The captain told her this gruffly, because that is the way editors are supposed to talk. It is now time for a few tears to constitute the realism, but she forgot it.

And the captain turned on his heels and left her. Captains always turn on their heels that way in the army, it is books.

But did she despair? No. She ran up against a Dutch corporal with sore eyes and told him her story. He felt sorry for the poor girl, because he knew how it was himself. She asked him if she might not see her lover Reginald, for if she did not, her liver would spoil and then it would be too late, too late.

He let fall a silent tear that he had no further use for. It dropped about one foot and it fell with a dull, sickening thud. A member of the Ninth regiment saw the spot afterwards and spoke about it.

The Dutch corporal with sore eyes then told her that her lover was down in the mine barn carrying mules, but he didn't care, she "had come all the way to South Africa to see him and she would see Reginald if he was to be seen." Which shows that her grammar was somewhat defective, but her liver was undisturbed.

When she asked the corporal if she might see Reginald, he wished the other eye and told her not to mention it. "Alys" could take a hint when a brick house fell on her, and she went around the mule emporium and there she met Reginald who was greatly surprised to see her. In less time than it takes to tell it they were locked in each others' embrace and he held her there till the clock in the steeple struck twelve and she told him to let her go.

She then told him that she could conceal the truth from him no longer, that she loved him like thirty cents and Reginald admitted that he could hardly blame her. He told her he was sentenced to be shot for a spy, but he thought he could square it all right with the guard. So he went down to the lines and promised the guard that he would set 'em up if he looked the other way as they passed out. The guard took the hint and also the beer. "Alys" took Reginald up behind her on the automobile and they cut for tall timber.

In the morning when the captain found that they were gone, he stormed around a good deal, but what good did it do? They had flown. They always "flew" in romances. He advertised for the escaped spy, but it brought no response and since then he does not believe that adventuring pays.

When "Alys" got home, her father forgave her and they were married and lived happily ever afterwards. He has been bonding with his wife's folks ever since.

The Minister's Wife's Work.

Every minister's wife is deeply interested in the work of the church, but no one should attempt to decide for her how much of that work is her share. The undue burden of burdens upon shoulders weighed with much willing service has caused some of us to raise our voices in protest, if not for ourselves, for the overtaxed bodies and brains of our less fortunately situated sisters. Let a clergyman's wife decide not to be tyrannized over by circumstances. She, more than many, needs to think out her life with care, and come to definite conclusions by which she is willing to abide. No regulations can be laid down for all alike, for a woman must be herself the judge of her abilities. Let her see to it, however, that she remains uninfluenced by those who would seek to direct her. It may be laid down as part of the remedy that no minister's wife should be at the head of more than one organization, and if her home cares are many she should not attempt even that. If she desires to take a class in Sunday-school she need not be given the worst class of boys, nor the most difficult class of little children. —September Ladies' Home Journal.

Curios of the Philippines.

A package of curios came to Ann McLean, last week, from his brother, Reginald, in the Philippines. Among the score or more curiosities it contained were quite a collection of the different denominations of silver money coined in our eastern possessions. There were two decks of playing cards resembling ours in everything but the figures. Instead of hearts, diamonds, spades, etc., were were fantastic and we might say ludicrous figures. But the most curious of the lot was a kind of necklace of beads and spangles of ivory, worn by savages of the mountain regions. It is worn under the chin and fastened in each ear by means of two small corks, from which hang two strings of spangles and beads, looking somewhat like the long earrings of a decade ago. These were also a score or more of ugly alligator teeth.

Know Better Next Time.

Two Xenia girls, by the names of Bernice Fox and Eva Cavender concluded that they would drive out to Lucas Grove, and seeing a horse and a nice rubber-tire buggy standing in front of a grocery they concluded to appropriate it for their own use. They kept the rig from about 7:30 in the evening until 12:30 Thursday morning, and on their return they hitched the rig on West Main Street. The owner of the property missed it and reported the matter to the police. The girls were arrested at their respective homes and appeared before the Mayor, where a plea of guilty to the charge of unlawful driving was entered to, and each were fined $19.05 and sent to the work house for five days.

THE RED LIGHT.

The Danger Signal What Must Always be Obeyed.

When there is danger on the railroad a red light is displayed. To run by this signal means death or injury to the passengers.

All through life we see the danger signals and, if unheeded, sorrow, despair, and sometimes death result. These warnings are sent out by man or nature for our protection.

Nature sends out a warning signal when her laws have been disobeyed and there is danger of going farther before the wrong is righted.

The best machinery needs oil, so does the human machine.
The system becomes run down and needs to be built up. It must be placed in a healthy condition before it will do its work properly.

If the blood is impure and the liver torpid, the stomach fails to do its work and dyspepsia, nervousness, catarrh, headaches, and constipation are the result. These are nature's signals. Heed them before it is too late.

A new combination of thoroughly tried and tested remedies called Knox Stomach Tablets are now offered to suffering humanity. This new vegetable remedy goes to the seat of these disorders, builds up the whole system, and transforms the weak and infirm into healthy men and women. A single box will be a most forcible argument to the sufferer.

Knox Stomach Tablets immediately relieve indigestion and are a positive cure for dyspepsia. If your druggist does not sell them, send fifty cents with your address and that of the druggist to the Knox Chemical Co., Battle Creek, Mich., and a full sized box will be sent postpaid.

OUR TELEPHONE

System Formally Opened Last Saturday Night. South Charleston Band Furnished the Music.

Last Saturday evening the local telephone system was formally opened and turned over to the public. The management in order to make the occasion more pleasant secured the services of the South Charleston Citizens Band, which rendered some very delightful music. The exchange was thrown open and all who had boxes had the pleasure of hearing the music by wire. Charley Galbreath was at "central" and handled the machine in a very creditable manner.

The band boys were seated on chairs out on Main Street in front of the exchange, yet the sound of the music over the wire was very distinct. Of course some tried to have more than the usual amount of pleasure, especially when everything was thrown wide open. You could very easily hear and understand all the conversation that took place. It would be almost an impossibility to repeat it "verbatim." Part of the conversation between several of the parties was supposed to be confidential.

In all, the opening was a perfect success and the telephone is something that will be found in a majority of the homes before a year expires, for already those who have them seem to think that it would be impossible to get along without it.

The exchange was closed after the concert until Monday morning, when it was opened to remain so from one week's end to another. At any time now, whether day or night, you will always be able to get the best possible service.

The line has been completed as far as the "club line" or independent company at Selma, where 22 boxes will be added, making this a very strong line to start with.

Elsewhere can be found the names of parties who have boxes and the number of same, which when calling always call by number as it will be of great advantage to the operator and also make time for yourself. There will be several more boxes added in a few days, making forty. The 22 on the "club line" will bring the total over 60. This is a good showing for the start, as the Charleston office opened with only 26 boxes.

Does it Pay to Buy Cheap.

A cheap remedy for coughs and colds is all right, but you want something that will relieve and cure the more severe and dangerous results of the throat and lung troubles. What shall you do? Go to a warmer and more regular climate? Yes, if possible; if not possible for you, then in either case take the only remedy that has been introduced in all civilized countries with success in severe throat and lung troubles, "Boschee's German Syrup." It not only kills and stimulates the tissues to destroy the germ disease, but allays inflammation, causes easy expectoration, gives a good night's rest, and cures the patient. Try one bottle. Business began to flee from the free trade panic that came in with Cleveland as soon as he was elected. There was no waiting to chance what congress might do. Yet, no president can all alone change a penny of the tariff except by direct authority of congress, while Bryan by his first order as president could force silver into circulation, and thus drive gold out of sight, compelling a panic.

"Democrats and Populists are quitting. All over the state they are quitting Bryan and taking a firm stand for McKinley." So says a Kansas paper, the Arkansas City Enquirer, in print, the names and addresses of 58 Democrats or Populists who have announced their intention of voting the Republican ticket, giving briefly the reasons of each for the change.

Did ever American administration more splendidly sustain the honor of our flag and the safety of our citizens than McKinley has done in China? Shall not such magnificent public service be approved by the votes of the people?

Cleveland's free trade panic proved that every man, every woman, has a direct personal interest in having the right president. Let every one imperiled financially by the risks of Bryanism help then to vote him out again.

In two years the United States has forged to the front among all the powers of the world. Are not Americans proud of their country's position? Does any man want to vote to reverse it?

Cleveland's free trade panic is bad enough, but Bryan's silver smash would be vastly worse.

Bryan as president can start a silver smash the first day by a mere order, and is publicly pledged to do it. Who will risk it?

If you don't want Democratic times again, work against their coming back with Bryan.

If you don't do your own duty in this campaign and election, never blame anyone else if trouble comes.

Bury Bryan beneath so big a vote that his financial facilities will never revive.

SOUTH KICKING

Over the Application of Bryan's Catch Phrase to Negro Vote.

The Bryan war cry, "consent of the governed," is proving a two-edged sword to the Bryan managers, smiting their friends and dividing their forces. A strong chorus of dissatisfaction is arising in the south over the Republican platform upon the political methods of the Democratic party in that section, by which alone Bryan can get any Democratic electoral votes in the south.

The Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser, Memphis (Tenn.) Commercial-Appeal and Macon (Ga.) Telegraph are representing that resolution of the Indianapolis anti-imperialist convention, which declares that in supporting the principles of the Declaration of Independence they meant to apply them to the negro race in America, as well as to the Philippines, and that they deprecated all efforts to deprive the negro of his rights as a citizen. The Macon Telegraph, for example, says that "there can be no objection to these people voting the Democratic ticket; but it is very offensive to the people of the south for the southerly, negro-loving agitators like Bowditch to give them a slap in the face upon the threshold, when they declare themselves Democratic."

World's Money Market

Now that even the Cincinnati Enquirer acknowledges that "the United States will probably continue to be for a long time the cheapest money market in the world," with the result that it Europe, and more particularly, Great Britain, need gold, it will turn to the United States for it, because, as The Enquirer says, "nowhere else, as fact, can gold be readily obtained," what is left in the face of this actual fact, of the entire Bryan campaign, contention of four years ago, that McKinley's election would put up the price of money and drive the gold out of the country? In giving this fact Mr. McLean's paper is talking straight business, not politics, and for that reason its evidence is the more convincing.

SENATOR J. B. FORAKER

Tells Why Republican Party Should Succeed.

PROSPERITY SAFE UNDER ITS RULE

Striking Proof of Capacity of Republican Party to Conduct Affairs Wisely, Not Only at Home, but in Our Foreign Relations.

What every one wants is the best possible agency to administer our public affairs, having regard to the prosperity of the country and the people of all classes, and our credit and honor as a nation. It must be manifest to all that these purposes are best secured in the hands of the present administration. The country was in a state of bankruptcy and ruin so far as business was concerned, when President McKinley was elected four years ago. He came into power pledged to restore prosperity. He has kept that pledge. The first act of his administration was to call congress in extra session and recommended the enactment of a protective tariff law. Congress did the work thus assigned to it, and from the very day that statute became a law until now, we have had prosperity of the most unprecedented character. Our industries have been rapidly developed, our labor has been profitably employed, our domestic exchanges have exceeded anything ever before known, while our trade with the rest of the world has grown to greater proportions than the most sanguine anticipated. The balance in our favor makes us the creditor nation of the world. If we want prosperity to continue, we should let well enough alone and re-elect McKinley. Everybody knows—even Democrats—that if he is re-elected we will move forward without a jar; but who knows what would happen—or would not happen—if Bryan should be elected?

But the capacity of the Republican party for the successful administration of our national government is even more strikingly illustrated by what has been accomplished under this administration in our foreign relations. We were not prepared for war, but we were called upon to meet its emergencies. The result was a triumphant success of the most brilliant quality. The admiration of the whole world was excited, and justly so, by our victories. The results of that war, not sought, but forced upon us, have brought to us new and difficult problems. Our Democratic friends insisted that the ratification of the treaty of peace with Spain, whereby the Philippine Islands were ceded to us, should be followed by an official expression of the senate that it was not our purpose to incorporate those islands and their inhabitants into the United States as a part thereof, and that we would not at any time create them into states to be admitted into the Union. In other words, in so long as we governed those islands at all, they were to be governed as territory simply belonging to the United States, and their people were to be treated, not as citizens of the United States, entitled to the privileges and guarantees of our constitution and institutions, but, as the treaty of peace itself expressed it, their civil and political status was to be fixed by the congress of the United States. Before action could be taken in this regard an insurrection broke out. It became necessary for the United States government to at once retire, or surrender, or suppress that insurrection and establish law, order and a stable government.

The Republican party does not surrender, it does not retire, except in order, and therefore it felt that it was its duty, both to the people in the Philippine Islands and the rest of the world, to suppress the insurrection and then legislate. We have been engaged in that work. Our efforts, however, have been attended with opposition—at least the opposition of criticism—from the Democratic party. They now say: "The Constitution follows the flag," and claim that we are converting our government into an empire because we haven't given trial by jury, the right of suffrage, and the bill of rights generally, to a lot of men with guns in their hands. They insist that that country was ceded to us, that it should be distinctly understood that the constitution did not go there, and now they are insisting that it does go there. What they will next advocate depends entirely upon the exigencies of their political situation; and while they are talking about the Declaration of Independence and the consent of the governed for the Philippines, who they insist never shall become citizens, they are robbing the negro citizen of the United States of his right to vote, and denying to him "consent" to anything. We have just sent a negro regiment to China to fight the boxers and save our missionaries and ministers. Everybody knows they will fight gallantly, but colored men have fought gallantly for our flag and country ever since the blood of Crispus Attucks was shed in the streets of Boston. But when the war is over and those gallant black men return to the United States, if the president should appoint one of them to a fourth-class postoffice, he would not be allowed to hold it in any southern state, and he would be murdered.

If he should insist upon his right under the constitution and laws to do so. Manifestly, a party that is responsible for the business prostration, stagnation and idleness of labor that obtained in this country under the last administration of Mr. Cleveland, and which thought the remedy for this result of free trade was to add free silver, and which so "backed and filled" with respect to the relation and duty of the United States toward our recent acquisitions, and which is even now openly and defiantly nullifying the fifteenth amendment to the constitution, and insisting upon the folly of free silver, is not qualified to deal with such great world-wide questions as those which this government must deal with during the next four years. Everybody knows this, and that is reason enough for keeping it out of power.

But many other considerations might be added, and all might be elaborated. The chapter of history now being written in China reflects the very highest credit on the McKinley administration. When Peking was last visited by the civilized powers, neither the United States nor Japan was known as a world power; but today these two nations are at the head of the relief column, and the United States, with her diplomacy and wisdom in statesmanship, has laid down the rules that all the other civilized nations of the earth interested in what is now transpiring in China have accepted and followed. Mr. Bryan and his party had been in power and had their way, and had acted as they talk, this would not, and could not have happened.

It is well enough to have a Democratic party. It makes us vigilant and keeps us humble, and we are all the better on that account, but it would be a mistake to put it to any other service. J. B. FORAKER.

LESS LITIGATION

REMARKABLE DECREASE IN CASES BEFORE OHIO COURTS.

Prosperity Reduces the Number of Civil Suits—Comparison of Totals of Cases Before Supreme, Circuit and Common Pleas Courts For Two Years Past.

Some statistics regarding the work of the courts of the state for the past year have been tabulated by Secretary of State Kinney. They show the total number of cases pending during the year, before the circuit courts of the state, to be 3,161, as compared with 3,441 for the preceding year; and that the number of cases taken to the supreme court from the circuit court is 259, as compared with 310 for the preceding year.

The totals of the table are as follows: Cases pending July 1, 1899, 1,133; cases filed during the year ending July 1, 1900, 2,028; total number of cases, 3,161; number of cases finally disposed of in circuit court, 1,824; cases taken to the supreme court, 259; number pending before the circuit court July 1, 1900, 1,078.

In the courts of common pleas the showing as to the falling off in litigation is very marked. The table shows that the whole number of cases before that court for the past year is only 55,231, as compared with 72,220 for the previous year—a decrease in the number of cases filed of 19,989. The number of cases finally disposed of for the past year is 31,669, as compared with 48,348 for the previous year—a decrease of 16,679 cases, in round numbers.

The totals of the table for the common pleas courts is as follows: Cases pending July 1, 1899, 20,010; cases filed during the year ending July 1, 1900, 34,315; total number of cases, 55,231; number finally disposed of, 31,669; cases taken to the circuit court, 1,337; number pending July 1, 1900, 21,825.

How To Gain Flesh

Persons have been known to gain a pound a day by taking an ounce of SCOTT'S EMULSION. It is strange, but it often happens.

Somehow the ounce produces the pound; it seems to start the digestive machinery going properly, so that the patient is able to digest and absorb his ordinary food, which he could not do before, and that is the way the gain is made.

A certain amount of flesh is necessary for health; if you have not got it you can get it by taking

Scott's Emulsion

You will find it just as useful in summer as in winter, and if you are driving upon it don't stop because the weather is warm.

A Wonderful Cure of Diarrhoea.

A prominent Virginia editor had almost given up, but was brought back to perfect health by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

READ THIS EDITORIAL.

From the Times, Hillsdale, Va.

I suffered with diarrhoea for a long time and thought I was past being cured. I had spent much time and money and suffered so much misery that I had almost decided to give up all hopes of recovery and await the result, but noticing the advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and also some testimonials stating how some wonderful cures had been wrought by this remedy, I decided to try it. After taking a few doses I was entirely well of that trouble, and I wish to say further to my readers and fellow sufferers that I am a hale and hearty man today and feel as well as I ever did in my life. O. R. Moore. Sold by C. M. Ridgway.
